Documenting History: COVID-19 Notes

We are living through an incredible moment in our lifetime. You are the makers of history and documenting the impact of this crisis for future generations as it unfolds is important information. What do you want them to know about this time? What do you want them to be prepared for if they must face the same challenges? Send us your words, photographs, drawings or videos to document your experiences under quarantine.

Union Public Library, in partnership with the Union Township Historical Society, is collecting the thoughts, feelings and general impact of the COVID-19 Quarantine on Union residents of all ages for a historical record of life in Union, NJ circa 2020. The collection will be made available to the public in the near future.

Between April 3 and until the quarantine ends, we ask those who live or work in Union share their personal experience in response to one of the following prompts, or anything else you would like to share:

- What will you remember most about this time?
- What has surprised you most as this quarantine has unfolded?
- What is an unexpected, positive impact of the quarantine?
- What do you most look forward to when schools reopen?
- What are your hopes for the future when this is all over?

Please submit* responses in the form below.

*Send this work if in agreement that UPL and the Union Township Historical Society has permission to share the words and pictures with the public as part of the historical record and no benefit, financial or otherwise, is given or implied for the submitted material.
